

REMARKS

Although the parent application of the present divisional application properly contained the symbol “±” in Table 2, the present application contains some other symbol. The replacement of the symbol “±” was inadvertent. Applicant believes that upgrades in the word processing program between the filing of the parent application and the filing of the present divisional application may have caused the insertion of the improper symbol.

The specification has been amended to place it in better condition for examination.

Applicant submits that all of the claims are in condition for examination, which action is requested.